For some it might be old news, but new information for others at the same time. There is definately going to be a MMORPG in the Warhammer World, targeted as direct rival to World of Warcraft. After the first failed attempt of GW with Warhammer Online, there are now new interesting pictures from W.A.R. (Warhammer Age Of Reckoning), being developed by Mythic Entertainment. There is no confirmation of a Representation of Bretonnia (...yet?), but the players can definately be of Human race among others. Everything seems to be centered around the Empire, though.

In the March Preview, there are a many interesting concept pictures, be sure to check them out. Release Date is planned to be 2007.
