

Ads to support the costs of running this site

For over seven years the Round Table ran on our trusty servers ad-free and solely supported by your donations. Unfortunately, keeping the site running smoothly and without delays or connection problems requires upgrading our hosting plan to a more powerful server package. At the same time, regular donations have decreased recently. So had to take the hard decision to start displaying ads. I'm still experimenting with the layout and placements, and try to keep them as unobtrusive as possible (e.g., there will never be nasty popups or similar!). Please see this as a possibility to support the running of this site. Should you be running an ad-blocker, consider deactivating it for our site - and click the banners whenever something interests you! With this you can support the running of this community, and it doesn't cost you anything.
