Last Updated Saturday, 29 November 2014

As part of our ninth anniversary, the Round Table hosts its famed painting competition. Until the end of the 8th of December 2014

GMT everybody can upload their submissions in the category "Anniversary Painting Competition" (will be refreshed and opened soon) in the Gallery. To participate, just upload the image in your Gallery User Panel and choose Anniversary Painting Competition as category.

Like last year, this competition will feature a motto: The Aftermath. You can follow that motto with your submission, but you are not forced to. In the judging process, bonus points will be awarded to submissions following the theme.

The Rules

- Each member may submit at most one submission in the main category(=character, unit, scenery, or even drawing)
- For the main miniature category, you should upload more than one picture showing your submission from different angles. However, please don't upload more than three images per submission. You can combine multiple pictures (e.g. with different perspectives or details) into one image file using an image editing program like Gimp or Photoshop. The better the lighting and quality of your pictures and the more you show of your miniature, the better the quality of your miniatures can be judged!
- As with the rest of the gallery, upload only pictures of your own miniatures. All submission must have been painted by you (and not, for example, a painting service).
- Your submission must be related to Bretonnia.
- Bonus points will be awarded for following the contest theme
- Your submission must be a new one, i.e. you may not have submitted it to the gallery here or elsewhere in the past. It's OK if you just uploaded it to our gallery recently, just move it to the painting competition gallery then.
- Please do not vote for the images in the Anniversary Competition until submission is closed. After that everybody can vote for their favourites. The jury will consider the votes when reviewing the submissions.
